Spiritual nourishment on Warwick's enchanting Wawayanda

Apr 2022 | By Prof. Richard Hull. Along its banks in the tranquil hamlet of New Milford lies Pacem In Terris (Peace on Earth). It's a tiny oasis of quiet beauty, an awesome place for spiritual nourishment in a stressful and polarized world. On this inspiring landscape you're surrounded by sculpture gardens, art galleries in rustic historic cottages and an exquisite early American stone millhouse where live classical chamber music is played by nationally-recognized artists in a small intimate amphitheater enhanced by a stream of water running through it. Numerous image-maker sculptural icons of glass, wood, steel, and bronze fill the landscape, they inspire, evoke and celebrate the meaning, magic and endurance of the human spirit. Its extraordinarily peaceful ambience offers a quiet and safe haven for personal meditation and an undisturbed sacred space in ☐ nature where you can find your spiritual self. In the words of its founder Dr. Frederick Franck, it "speaks to all who share the specifically human search for meaning and for values by one can live a human life."
